PWPA - Its History

The Philippine Wood Producers Association (PWPA) is the result of a series of mergers of six predecessor-in-interest organizations. The founding year of PWPA was reckoned from 1951 when the surviving organization of the earlier merger, the Philippine Lumber Producers' Association (PLPA), was registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) on May 30, 1951. The charter of PLPA was carried by PWPA.

It is a fact, however, the first predecessor-in-interest of PWPA was the Philippine Hardwood Manufacturers' (Exporters) Association (PHMA), founded in 1934 on the eve of the American Civil Government in the country, but was not officially registered with the government. Initially established by a small group of American wood-based companies operating in the country, the main aim of PHMA was to introduce the hardly-known but widely available local timber species it named Philippine Mahogany in the US market. Closely supported by its counterpart in the US mainland, the Philippine Hardwood Manufacturers' (Importers) Association, the Philippine-based association was successful in making known and accepted the Philippine Mahogany lumber to the US, and much later, to the world market.

On October 9, 1939, the PLPA was organized by practically the PHMA group with the objective of unifying local lumber manufacturers and promoting wider use of lumber in the domestic market. Before their merger, the PHMA and PLPA existed side by side, the PHMA took care of the export trade and the PLPA, the domestic trade.

The Japanese occupation of the Philippines made inactive these associations. The Japanese established the Philippine Lumber Control Union (Philippine Mokusai Kumlai), a monopoly to control logging, sawmilling, and supplying lumber to the Imperial Japanese Forces. In answer to the complaints about prices and payments of logs and lumber, the Filipino companies belonging to the 37 provincial and regional associations consolidated themselves on September 7, 1943 into the Forest Products Producers Federation. All members sold their produce to the Federation who, in turn, sold it to the Japanese Military Forces.

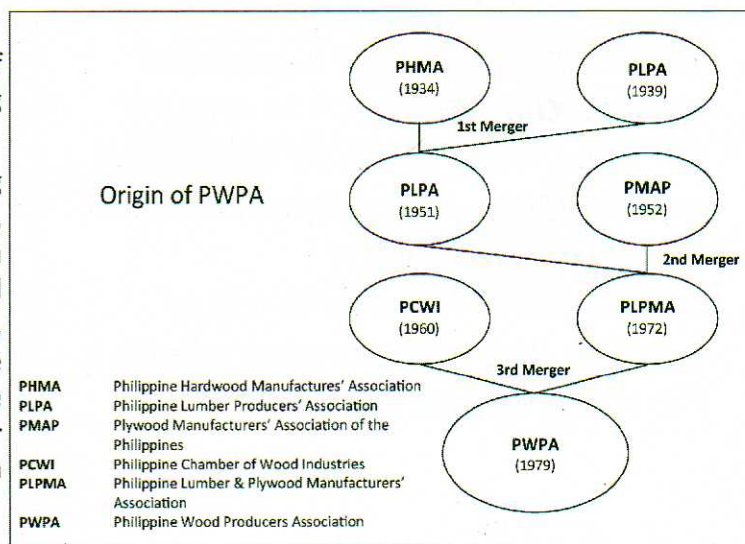

As the war ended in late 1945 and the Second Republic proclaimed on July 4, 1946, the wood industry was made active by the requirements for wood materials needed for the reconstruction of the country. On June 8, 1949, in a joint meeting of PHMA and PLPA, a Resolution to merge was adopted with the PLPA as surviving association.

Sometime in 1952, the few plywood companies organized the Plywood Manufacturers' Association of the Philippines (PMAP). It was only after the War that plywood manufacturing gained some headways. The aim was to encourage the processing of logs into value-added plywood for export. Also sometime in 1960, Philippine Chamber of Wood Industries (PCWI) was organized with the objective of promoting the increase in the production and marketing of timber and timber products.

The period of 60's and 70's saw the phenomenal growth of the wood industry. The wood industry became the second biggest foreign exchange earner and was instrumental in realizing a favorable balance of trade and dollar reserves for the country.

On June 25, 1972, with a commonality of objectives, the PLPA and PMAP merged assuming the name of the latter.

On December 22, 1979, in the face of growing competition from other tropical countries, particularly those from the SE Asian Region and in the desire of the government to rationalize the wood industry, i.e, to shift from log export to processing, the PLPMA and the PCWI merged adopting the charter of the former and calling itself the Philippine Wood Products Association (PWPA), renamed later as the Philippine Wood Producers Association (also, PWPA acronym). The rest is history.

Message from the Office of the Vice President

MESSAGE

Warmest greetings to the members of the Philippine Wood Producers Association (PWPA) and to the organizers of the first Philippine Wood Expo and Forum!

We laud your contribution to ensuring that Filipino products are globally competitive and that the industry flourishes as it is geared towards sustainable development. We are confident that as you bring together key trade players in forest plantation, logging, import-export trading, and furniture-making among others, more stakeholders will be encouraged to support your initiatives to make our products more competitive in the global arena.

We hope that as you hold the first ever Philippine Wood Expo and Forum, onlookers will be inspired to invest and support PWPA projects directed towards promoting our natural resources, thus providing more opportunities for our kababayans in the country.

Congratulations to PWPA and may you have many more forums in the future!

Mabuhay tayong lahat!

MESSAGE

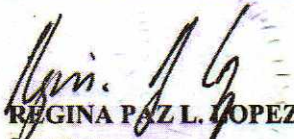

Greetings to the Philippine Wood Producers Association, as it hosts the 1st Philippine Wood Expo and Forum!

Wood is an indispensable resource of our people and economy. However, profligate use has decimated our forests and left us so little forest cover, making us vulnerable to topsoil erosion, flashfloods, biodiversity loss, watershed degradation, and other adverse effects now being compounded by climate change. Thus, from time to time, we have had to ban logging, and continuously undertake massive reforestation.

As the impact of climate change gets worse, reforestation assumes greater importance. Because trees sequester carbon dioxide from the atmosphere, forests act as carbon sinks. But trees do not live forever; left to decay, they release carbon back to the environment. It is in this light that we appreciate the theme of the 1st Philippine Wood Expo and Forum – “Wood: A Strong Climate Change Solution.”

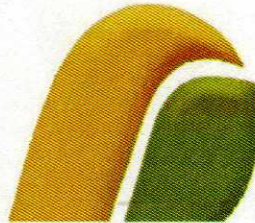

I enjoin you to really make a difference in our continuing efforts to protect and preserve our environment and ecological balance and ensure that our resources – particularly our forests – are used in the most prudent way.

We wish the PWPA and its 350 member firms a successful Expo and Forum that will truly promote sustainable building and reforestation.

Let's Go Green !!!

Message from the Federation of Philippine Industries

The world is feeling the brunt of climate change as it continues to experience the worst weather phenomenon in recent memory. Massive deforestation brought about by reckless and irresponsible human activities apparently fueled the rapid acceleration of this climate crisis. To reverse the effect, we must plant trees and replenish our balding forest as a way to capture tonnes of deadly carbons in our atmosphere.

We must also learn how to use forest by-products like wood, in an efficient and sustainable manner. Study shows that wood compared to other Green House Gas (GHG) intensive building materials such as steel and concrete, offers a wide array of environmental benefits mainly due to its lower carbon footprints as it only requires less energy to manufacture. But just like any other natural wealth we receive from mother earth, these resources are not infinite. Thus, in order for us to reap its full benefits, we must learn to utilize it efficiently and responsibly for the sake of our future generation.

It is in this regard that I am congratulating the Philippine Wood Producers Association for organizing the 1st Philippine Wood Expo and Forum which is aptly themed "Wood: A strong Climate Change Solution". Indeed, your event is very timely as it seeks to inculcate into the minds of the general public and your members the importance of our forest and the significance of reforestation as the best measure to sequester and mitigate CO₂ emissions, with the aim of making them responsible wood users who will surely maintain a vibrant forest being the main source of the industry.

Mabuhay kayong lahat!

Message from the Society of Filipino Foresters, Inc.

Jointly with the Philippine Wood Producers Association (PWPA), the Society of Filipino Foresters, Inc. (SFFI) believes that wood production plays a critical role in promoting progress. However, man should be able to strike a balance between economic progress and environmental conservation inasmuch as the latter can severely affect the former when neglected. This scenario, including its negative impacts, are already being felt countrywide through landslides, flooding, poor crop production, and even the advent of new diseases, to name a few.

In this context, and in purview of the Society's advocacy for Sustainable Forest Management and the implementation of one of its banner initiative, the "Carbon Neutral Program", man should also be aware that harvesting or cutting wood is not bad. To the environmentalist, it can be one way of carbon stocking or simply stimulate growth of new life. To upland farmers, this can be one stream of sustainable income. To the Philippine government, this may be one way of increasing gross domestic product and eventually income. To the various wood-dependent businesses in the country, this may be a breath of fresh air given the growing scarcity of legal wood sources. But for the SFFI, this is a significant process in promoting sustainable forest management when done properly.

We must all remember that wood is a basic ingredient for every economy when it's harvesting is properly planned and managed. We all need to build our shelters, install fixtures in our houses, decorate with furniture, construct offices, and even build railways...But with this, we need to bear in mind that wood is a finite resource. But the good news is, it is renewable!

More than ever, the SFFI is resolved to revitalizing the country's forestry. Our programs engage not only co-foresters but also other stakeholders who share our objectives in promoting sustainable forest management. We're glad that among the said partners, is the PWPA.

On this occasion, allow us to congratulate the Philippine Wood Producers Association (PWPA) for hosting the 1st Philippine Wood Expo and Forum! We wish you all the best and our hope for a continuing symbiotic relationship.

Together we can make "Green Philippines" happen!

Message from the Chairman

My warmest congratulations to all the members of the Philippine Wood Producers Association (PWWA), Inc.!

It is with pride when I share that PWWA, a non-profit organization, has surmounted the odds to mount the 1st Philippine Wood Expo and Forum 2016 purely because we firmly believe in our advocacy: the sustainability of wood.

With this event's theme, "Wood: A Strong Climate Change Solution," our belief in the principles of sustainable development shines through because wood is actually the only renewable material left that's not manufactured by carving out and destroying mountains but created by the earth and sun. Instead of letting carbon dioxide cloud our atmosphere, trees absorb and trap it to form its trunk, leaves and branches and this is how it actively reduces greenhouse effect on earth. Alas upon maturity, this rate of Carbon Dioxide absorption slows down much like adults absorb milk for calcium. As advocated by PWWA, if we source responsibly from Tree Plantations and NOT protected natural old-growth forests, wood use encourages tree farms to increase planting cycles and coverage areas resulting to more CO2-storing trees and increased forest covers.

The Philippines, with its richness in soil and natural resources, can take advantage of business sector interests in investments intertwined with environmental sustainability. If we collectively approach responsible forest management without the misplaced stigma normally associated with wood, together we may find that making the country conducive for Tree Farm Investments which not only infuse funds into our economy but provide jobs to our populace particularly in the country-side. Sustainable forest management addresses the need to spur economic growth, promotes social justice, protects our environment and with the proper framework ensures complete transparency and good governance. Sustainability and progress can and must indeed go hand-in-hand. Mother Earth has done the refinement of technology for us by creating trees - all we have to do is decide to take her offer – and more importantly, this message has to be tirelessly shared for us to start active and positive change.

To our guests coming from all over the world and fellow wood enthusiasts, I thank you for your support. I hope you were challenged, excited and inspired with our 1st Philippine Wood Expo and Forum here at the Manila Hotel so you, in turn, may share the good news that we do stand a chance promoting progress and mitigating climate change with sustainable wood.

Cheers!

Brief Introduction: Tropical Timber was established in Sibu, Sarawak, Malaysia in the year 1979 and started basically as a timber trading company with its core products being logs and sawn timber which were geared mainly toward the export market.

Since then, the Group has expanded into logging, sawmilling, wood chipping and the production of wood pellets and veneer. The trading division has also included products like fingerjoint timber, veneer, plywood, blockboard, barecore, medium density fibreboard, woodchips, wood pellets as well as palm kernel shells.

The principal sources of supply are Malaysia, Indonesia, Vietnam, Thailand, Papua New Guinea and Europe while the main markets for its products are the Philippines, Thailand, Hong Kong, China, Taiwan, South Korea, Japan, India, the Middle East, Singapore and Central America.

About the Speakers

The Department of Environment and Natural Resources (DENR) is the department responsible for the conservation, management, development, and proper use of the country's environment and natural resources to ensure that benefits derived there from shall be shared equitably for the welfare of the present and future generations of Filipinos. The DENR will present its policies and directions for forestry and wood industry under the Duterte Administration.

Mr. Colin Chornohus is the International Sales Manager for Structurlam Products based in Vancouver, BC, Canada. He holds a Civil Engineering Technology Diploma and is a registered Applied Science Technologist with over 25 years of specialized industry experience in the field of engineered wood products.

His presentation entitled "Mass Timber & Beyond" will focus on glued laminated timber (otherwise known as Glulam) & CLT projects from a manufacturer's perspective with emphasis on the UBC Brock Commons 18 storey building in Vancouver- the world's tallest mass timber building.

Forester Tommy Valdez is the National Council President of the Society of Filipino Foresters, the sole forestry professional organization in the country. He is also the Vice President for Corporate Social Responsibility & Security of the San Roque Power Corporation (SRPC) in San Manuel, Pangasinan. He also worked with the DENR for more than 10 years. He has a Master of Philosophy in Resource and Environmental Planning from Massey University in New Zealand and Bachelor of Science Degree in Forestry from the University of the Philippines at Los Banos, College, Laguna, Philippines. He is a licensed forester and Environmental Planner.

His presentation entitled "Why the World Needs Wood" will provide information about wood being a highly carbon positive material. His presentation will also showcase the concept of sustainable forest management (SFM), both as policy and practice, and how it can contribute to the country's economy, safe environment and building sustainable communities. It will also make participants understand how producing more wood can benefit and build the country and that the simple act of growing trees can contribute in mitigating carbon emissions, conserve the environment, solve poverty and save mankind. He leaves a question: are we up to the challenge?

About the Speakers

WAKE UP

Global warming, the biggest challenge of our time, is here.
We have two choices: to simply surrender or do something about it. Why not fight it with wood?

Yes, WOOD.

Let's talk wood - the most misunderstood material that is actually the only real sustainable construction item in existence today. Not manufactured by carving out mountains but created by the sun.

Let's talk about wood that aggressively absorbs and keeps carbon dioxide (CO₂) in its growth years to help reduce greenhouse gasses in the air*. Sourced responsibly, wood use encourages well-managed tree farms to increase planting cycles and areas - more CO₂ storing-trees worldwide.

Let's talk about the only material that gives you interiors of subdued elegance with natural beauty AND comforts your mind. It's true. Studies show wood presence helps calm the senses, decrease heart rates and reduce tension.

Finally, let's bring this back home. Let's talk about the material that traps global warming-causing CO₂ safely into your beautiful doors, floors and decks - away from your lungs.

Yes, a rewarding life fighting global warming with sustainable wood is possible.

It all starts with your decision.

* Timber Industry Accord. Timber: Growing our Low-Carbon Economy. October 2014. Carbon dioxide stored by forest and into timber outweighs any carbon dioxide created during the product production. Each tonne of timber saves approx a tonne of carbon dioxide. Page 4.

 Danish Wood Initiative. Nature's stroke of genius. October 2011. Mainly due to tree farming, European forest areas are expanding and increasing for about 500,000 square each year.

FPInnovations. Centre for Interactive Research on Sustainability Case Study. November 2012. Visual presence of wood indoors reduce stress reactivity in the sympathetic nervous system (SNS) of building occupants.

Let's talk wood.

OUR 60-YEAR "TREE-BUTE" TO MOTHER EARTH

Among the major economic activities, only reforestation and the preservation of forest lands for tree planting actually reduce greenhouse gases (GHG) that cause global warming and climate change.

2010 GHG Emissions & Removals (MtCO₂e)

Source: Climate Change Commission (Philippines)

As these are nurtured to maturity, trees convert carbon dioxide (a GHG) into wood. Mature trees converted into durable wood products lock up carbon dioxide for the life of the product.

Replacing harvested trees with faster growing species speeds up carbon capture and mitigates climate change rapidly.

*From SUPERIOR TREES to DURABLE
WOOD PRODUCTS, we contribute to
NATION BUILDING and pay
"Tree-bute" to
MOTHER EARTH.*

Resins Inc. at 60 and beyond

Four-and-a-half-year-old trees from CTNI Bagras clone seedlings in a Mindanao plantation

The Resins Inc. community celebrates its 60th Anniversary with a distribution of tree seedlings to guests

WE HELP FIGHT CLIMATE CHANGE

Through advanced resins and adhesives, we continually enhance the permanence of wood products, furniture and affordable typhoon-resistant homes for our people, especially the marginalized.

Our Claveria Tree Nursery Inc. (CTNI) produces clone seedlings of fast-growing trees, providing good livelihood for tree farmers and a steady supply of wood for industries.

We invite organizations to provide barangay nurseries near planting sites because seedlings, like babies, need tender handling and care. For inquiries, please call Bob Togle at (8822)760227 and 09177064104 or email rtogle@richem.com.ph.
